School-by-school breakdown of this year's test scores

Wondering exactly how local schools shaped up in the recent round of "SAT 9" student testing?

Here's a grade-by-grade, school-by-school breakdown, courtesy of Washington Unified School District. An average score is "50," with higher numbers representing performance above average and lower numbers including sub-average performance. Following each percentile score is an indicator of whether the results went up or down since last year. For instance, a "+5" indicates that the grade tested improved by five points over last year's results.

Washington Unified School District's schools performed as follows. Scores are given for both the 1999 and 2000 tests.

Ripped from its base

Vandals had already turned spray cans on the new Pony Express Monument, located on the city's River Walk south of the I St. Bridge.

But last week, they simply removed most of it and dragged it around, possibly chained behind a car or truck.

The top part of the granite monument was found chipped and damaged.

A historical society member reports that the Parks Department has the damaged monument and will try to fix it.

ABOUT TOWN:

On being 100 years old

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

On July 9th, approximately 40 friends and relatives of longtime West Sacramento resident Mary Silva gathered at the Somerset Nursing Center to celebrate her 100th birthday.

Mary was born at the turn of the 20th century in the Azores, a group of islands in the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Portugal. The oldest of six children, she came to the United States all by herself when she was only 16 years old.

"I came by boat during World War One," remembered Mary. "I wanted to get a good job and make enough money to help my family. I ended up in Massachusetts doing housework for people who lived in very nice homes. Where I had lived, there was no electricity or running water, so everything was very different from what I was used to."

Before moving to West Sacramento, Mary and her husband, Albert Silva, farmed 80 acres of land near what is now Sacramento International Airport.

"We grew all kinds of things," said Mary, "including beets, corn and alfalfa. When the airport came, though, we sold our land and moved to West Sacramento."

In the early 1970s, Mary was befriended by next-door-neighbor Sue McMillan and they have been close friends ever since. Sue visits Mary at Somerset most evenings and is not the least bit surprised that Mary is still remarkably healthy and full of life.

"Mary lived in her own home until just last year," explained Sue, "and outside of a problem with falling and some memory loss, she is still in very good health. We all wish she would eat a little better, but even at 100, she has no intention of gaining weight. And it wasn't that long ago that she was at the VFW Hall every Monday night playing Bingo, too."

Mary says hard work has had a lot to do with her longevity.

"Working is good for people," said Mary. "Plus I've never smoked or drank, except for a little wine now and then. But if you ask me why I've lived so long, I think it's because of all the work and worry."

"Mary is a wonderful person," said Sue. "She's got a great sense of humor and I consider her my best friend. She's also a very good, religious person who for many years was a regular at Midnight Mass at Our Lady of Grace Church. And she also happens to be a great cook, too."

Mary has two children, son Frank, and a daughter, Cecilia, who is deceased. She also has eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Machschefes is first to file for office

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Challenger Karl Machschefes, a public school teacher who works in another district, has become the first to file for candidacy for the Washington Unified School District board of trustees.

Information on candidates who had "pulled papers" with the intention of joining him in the race was not available from county officials. Incumbents Pat Flint and Irene Eklund are expected to run for re-election, but incumbent Ed Hocking said he would not.

Hocking told the News-Ledger that Mayor Cabaldon's actions in forming a mayor's "blue ribbon commission on school excellence" were part of the reason he would not run again.

"I'm just tired of spending my credibility," he commented. "I appear by the mayor's (actions) and other editorials to be totally incompetent, and that has carried over to my day job. Mr. Cabaldon has turned loose the hounds – let him now control the hounds."

Closed-door WUSD item made public?

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The Washington Unified School District has included details of a closed-session litigation issue in its public minutes of the June 29 school board meeting. Such matters are usually kept confidential.

The minutes state that board member Ed Hocking "moved to direct District counsel to explore the possibility of negotiating with (accused thief) Ms. Gibson by contacting the District Attorney to see if that office is willing to drop the criminal charges, if counsel can negotiate a settlement."

Employee Kim Gibson has been accused of "stealing time" by failing to attend training sessions for which she was on salary. She has cried "foul" over the case, which has brought criminal charges. The record adds that the motion to try to drop the charges was seconded by trustee Irene Eklund, with three unnamed "yes" votes giving it approval. One unnamed member was absent and another abstained.

Reached for comment, Hocking called the record "totally inaccurate," but declined further comment because the item was a closed-session concern.

He was also asked if he knew why the closed-door minutes were made public.

"No, I don't, but there will be an explanation," he stated.

School superintendent Dr. Dennis Kelleher could not be reached for comment.

Board of supes joins court in providing listening assistance

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors chambers is now equipped with an assistive listening system, a sound system that conducts voice sounds from a microphone directly to the listener. It was installed to help those with hearing impairment better participate in board meetings.

The Woodland City Council Chambers and County Courthouse have similar devices, according to Yolo County. Visitors may use them by requesting a set of headphones to receive sound transmitted by infrared or FM transmission.

Police join CHP, others in spot-check of Jefferson Blvd. vehicle traffic

The West Sacramento Police Department joined the California Highway Patrol, the Sacramento County Auto Theft Task Force, the Yolo County Narcotics Enforcement Team, the Federal Drug Enforcement Agency and the state Alcohol Beverage Control Board in a new type of traffic checkpoint on Thursday.

A combined force of about 30 law enforcement personnel from these agencies met at Jefferson Blvd. at Michigan Blvd. "for the purpose of identifying and citing vehicles operating in an unsafe condition," said West Sacramento P.D. Lieutenant Ray Hensley.

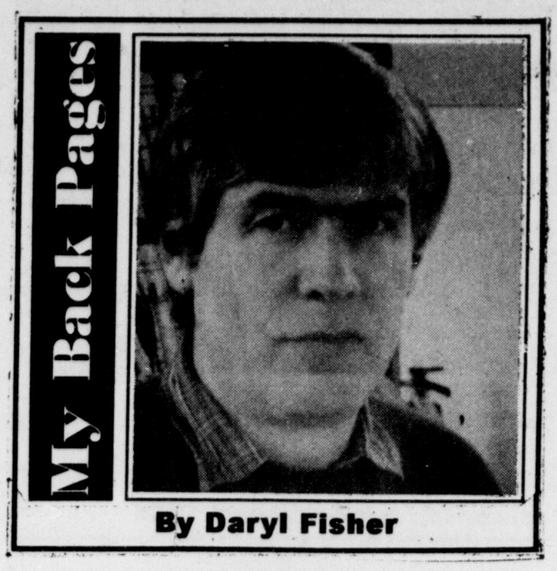
Hensley called the operation a "great success" that will be repeated. One person was arrested for driving while under the influence, and a second was arrested for possession of cocaine. 59 citations were issues and nine vehicles were towed.

Hensley contrasted the operation with the department's more routine use of a DUI checkpoint, used to catch drunk drivers. In a DUI checkpoint, he said, driver's are left with an alternate route to avoid the checkpoint. Then, each driver was contacted and observed for signs of alcohol or drug use.

At Thursday's vehicle checkpoint, no "escape route" was planned for driver's to circumvent inspection. Only vehicles with visible violations were routed to the side for contact with police.

"We would funnel them into one lane and have a spotter looking for observable violations," said Hensley. "If they had a bald tire, expired registration, somebody not wearing a seatbelt , then we would direct them to the side and talk to them."

Grace K. Ohlson: A life spent in the arena



By Daryl Fisher

Last Thursday evening, longtime West Sacramento political activist Grace Ohlson lost her six-month battle to overcome a series of debilitating strokes. Her death, which came while she was resting comfortably, put an end to a remarkable life that began more than eight decades ago in the Bay Area.

At a time when few women went to college, Grace not only earned a political science degree from the prestigious University of California at Berkeley, she also went on to do graduate work there. It was during that period of her life that she met Stanford University graduate John Ohlson at a small lunch party arranged by mutual friends. They married in 1945 and moved to West Sacramento in 1951, where they have lived ever since.

For almost half-a-century, Grace worked tirelessly to make West Sacramento a better place to live. She played an important role in just about every problem her community faced, from the lack of good water to drink to the need for a quality library. By sheer effort and a personal commitment to always try to do what she believed was right, no matter whose feathers got ruffled, Grace slowly but surely turned herself into arguably East Yolo's first real political force.

In an interview with this paper two years ago, John Ohlson said, "Grace's political activism goes all the way back to her father's experiences as a union man. She learned at an early age that somebody has to look out for the average citizen and hold politicians accountable, because if you don't, there's no telling what those rascals will do."

In all the political battles Grace fought over the years, and they are far too numerous to try and list here, even those who were absolutely convinced she was on the wrong side of an issue knew her concerns had to be taken into consideration. They knew she had done her homework and would not be satisfied until her point of view had been heard and reflected upon. They also knew that she never sought to benefit personally from her efforts and that whenever possible, she preferred to fight fair.

Grace was a life-long advocate for public education and also a former member of both the Washington Unified School District School Board and the Los Rios Junior College Board of Trustees. Her tenacious interest in local school board politics is well known to generations of past and present WUSD administrators and trustees and that is also how our paths first crossed.

Back in the late 1980s, I temporarily lost my senses and decided to run for the school board. The first question I can remember being asked after I had thrown my baseball cap into the ring was, "Does Grace Ohlson support you?"

"Who's Grace Ohlson?" I asked naively.

From the startled look on my poor campaign manager's face, it was obvious that if I was serious about running for the WUSD Board of Education, I definitely needed to find out more about this Grace Ohlson person.

During my four years on the school board, I can remember only a handful of meetings which weren't attended by Grace. And for those trustees who didn't agree with the positions she took on different issues (she usually got up at each meeting and spoke on matters which concerned her), she was like a thorn in their collective sides. Plus she was a stickler for Roberts' Rules of Order and if meetings weren't run properly, you quickly heard about it. She weighed less than a hundred pounds, but her stature in any room she entered was much larger. In fact, for those who disagreed with her and wished they could somehow just make her go away, they often began to believe that there was a Grace Ohlson behind every bush.

Over the past decade, as I got to know Grace better, I became one of her biggest fans. Not because of any particular cause she championed, but because she understood better than just about anyone I have ever known that if you're not willing to be part of the solution, then you're actually part of the problem. And because she was always willing to do the really hard stuff, like attend boring meetings, do countless hours of reading and research, write letters to the editor, get out the vote, and make nerve-wracking presentations to the city council and the school board. More important than all that, though, was the simple fact that she truly was a courageous soul who could stand the heat and didn't mind causing waves. She knew, as Frederick Douglas did, that "Those who profess to freedom, yet deprecate agitation, are men who want crops without plowing, rain without thunder and lightning, and the ocean without the awful roar of its many waters."

Grace Ohlson's life really mattered, not only to her family and her many friends, but to the community she lived in and dearly loved. Simply put, West Sacramento is a much better place because she was here.

For some time now, when thinking of Grace (usually after one of her after-hours telephone calls detailing a new city or school board problem which needed immediate attention if victory was going to be snatched from the jaws of defeat) I have been reminded of the following quote from Theodore Roosevelt:

"It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes up short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory or defeat."

You will be sorely missed, Gracie.

(The News-Ledger is establishing a scholarship fund in Grace's name. The goal is to raise a $10,000 endowment, with the interest earnings being used to support a $500 annual scholarship for Washington Unified School District graduates who plan on attending a college in the Los Rios Community College system. Anyone who would like to make a contribution to the fund can do so by making a check payable to the Grace K. Ohlson Scholarship Fund, P.O. Box 463, West Sacramento, CA 95691. OBITUARIES

Grace K. Ohlson

Grace Ohlson died of complications from a stroke on July 27, 2000 at the age of 83. She was born in Ruth, Nevada to Robert and Agnes Kneedler. The family moved to the Bay Area in 1918 and Grace attended schools in Alameda, continuing on to the University of California at Berkeley, where she studied political science and public administration and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in her junior year.

Grace came to Sacramento in 1940 to work as a research assistant at the Board of Equalization. In 1943 she joined the staff of the International City Managers Association where she assisted in compiling their yearbook.

In 1945, Grace married John Ohlson and moved to North Carolina where she worked as Secretary of the Durham County Tuberculosis Association. In 1950, the family, which now included two children, returned to California and settled in West Sacramento.

Grace pursued her interest in public administration by working on local committees to pass school bonds, twice serving on the Yolo Grand Jury, and was a founding member of the local Parent Nursery School. She was deeply involved with East Yolo People for Better Water and the building committee for West Sacramento's first public library, and was also instrumental in getting the California Field Act, which required all new schools to be built to earth-

The San Francisco 49ers opened the pre-season in Canton, Ohio on Monday night following the induction of Ronnie Lott and Joe Montana to the NFL Hall of Fame. The 49ers lost 20-0 to New England but Lott and Montana were the big winners. Just think back when the Niners were the cream of the crop. I know its only pre-season but it looks like the 49ers quarterbacks are going to be in for another long season! Sacramento's Gio Carmazzi had a horrible day at QB. Gio was sacked three times and over threw his receivers all night, completing 3 of 7 passes for 19 yards. Let's hope Carmazzi can only get better!

The 49ers, played Monday night without six starters on defense, tackle the Chargers on Saturday (6 p.m.- ch.10) night at 3 Com Park. The Raiders will open their pre-season on the road Saturday (4 p.m.) in St. Louis against the Super Bowl Champion Rams.

Speaking of seasons, the Kings are already in the news announcing the signing of free-agent guard Bobby Jackson and back up center Scot Pollard. Football season just started and the NBA is making waves with new free-agent signings and trade rumors.

The Kings, who lost Tony Delk to Phoenix, are trying to sign their first-round draft pick Hidayet Turkoglu, who is under contract with a Turkish team in the European League. The Miami Heat and the Charlotte Hornets are swapping nine-players that would send all-star Eddie Jones and bad boy Anthony Mason to Miami for P.J. Brown and Jamal Mashburn. The 76ers are trying to trade Allen Iverson and the Lakers are shopping Glen Rice.

The Oakland A's (58-47) were doing some shopping this week looking for a pitcher to make a second half run but decided to keep Matt Stairs and call up River Cats slugger, Jose Ortiz. Ortiz, who lead the Cats in homeruns and errors, will be used mostly as a right-handed pinch hitter.

The Giants (57-46) are tied with Arizona for first place in the West Division traded for reliever Doug Henry to shore up their beat up bullpen. Rumor out of the Bay Area has the Giants with their new PacBell Park are bidding for the 2004 All-Star game. The Giants last hosted the All-Star Classic in 1984.

The Rio Gatos (68-42) continue to win extending the division lead over the Las Vegas Stars to 11 ½ games. The A's will continue to invade the Cats player roster but they did add one player with a trade with Minnesota Twins. The A's sent Cats catcher Danny Ardoin to the majors for Salt Lake Buzz first baseman, Mario Valdez. Valdez, 25, is leading the Pacific Coast League in batting with a .366 average with 18 homers and 85 RBI. The River Cats return to Sacramento on Thursday, August 3rd for an eight game home stand. The Tucson Sidewinders (Diamondbacks Triple-A team) will invade Raley Field to play a four game series with the Gatos followed by another four game set starting on Monday night (7:05 p.m.) against the Memphis Redbirds (Cardinals Triple-A). Tickets are still available by calling 447-HITS.

See ya next week!!

Locals win again

West Sacramento Little League's 12-year-old All-Star District 6 champions won the Sectional Tournament held at Memorial Park last week. This week, they will be playing in the Divisional Tournament representing Section 4 at Roseville High School. quake resistant standards, to apply to existing structures as well.

Grace served on the Washington Unified School District Board of Trustees, the Los Rios Community College District Board, was President of the Yolo County School Boards Association, and was a member of the League of Womens Voters for 50 years.

An outspoken political activist for most of her life, Grace remained deeply interested in city and school district affairs in West Sacramento until her illness earlier this year.

"I'm not sure many people in West Sacramento really know how much she meant to this community," said Arthur Edmonds, a former Yolo County supervisor. "She didn't want a lot of applause, she just did what she did to help the community."

Edmonds noted that Grace "had the ability to evaluate a proposal faster than anybody I'd ever seen," and that she would work tirelessly against local candidates for office with whom she disagreed. But if those people were elected, Edmonds added, Grace was unusual in that "she'd immediately do whatever she could to convert them to her way of thinking -- to 'straighten them out.' "

In addition to her husband of 55 years, John, Grace is survived by two children, Mary B. Ohlson of El Cerrito and Nils Ohlson (wife Miriam) of Alameda, and three grandchildren, Isabel, Daniel and Jackson. She also leaves behind sisters Roberta Lingafelter of Seattle and Marie Moynihan of Berkeley, and a brother, Robert of Glendale.

At Grace's request, no funeral services were held. A scholarship fund in her name is being established by this newspaper. Contributions may be made to the Grace K. Ohlson Scholarship Fund, P.O. Box 463, West Sacramento, CA 95691.

Janet Friesinger: real estate enthusiast

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

Janet Friesinger was born and raised in West Sacramento and although she has spent time in other California communities, this is where her parents have always lived and she has always thought of West Sacramento as home.

"I went to Westmore Oaks Elementary School when I was small," remembered Janet, "and then I attended Westacres School for 6th, 7th, and 8th grades. I graduated from James Marshall High School in the late 1960s and shortly after that I married my high school sweetheart, Kenny Vaughan. When he went into the Navy, we lived in Long Beach for about 7 months before he was sent to Vietnam. He was gone for 13 long months and I still have all the letters he wrote me."

Before an accident claimed her husband's life while he and Janet were still in their 20s, they had a daughter, Tajia, who is currently living in San Diego with Janet's grandson, Korry.

"The day doesn't go by that I don't miss Tajia and Korry," said Janet, "but my job keeps me really busy, and thankfully it's the kind of work that I never get tired of doing."

Before Janet became a realtor in 1989, she did everything from waitressing to being a post office employee, but from the time she purchased her first home in the 1970s, she knew that the real estate business was something she would really enjoy doing.

"I even like doing all the paperwork that is required in my job," said Janet. "Plus I never get bored, I'm always meeting new and interesting people, there are always problems to solve and challenges to face, and best of all, I get to help people through a very exciting time in their lives."

Linda Robinson, who recently sold a home in West Sacramento with Janet's help said, "The thing that really made working with Janet special is that in addition to being very professional, I could tell right away that she honestly cared about me as a person. In fact, she treated me more like a friend than a client. She was also very helpful when pest people and gardening people and others needed to be hired and she was truly instrumental in everything going so smoothly. I would definitely recommend her to anyone who needs a hard-working, caring realtor and she will be the first person I call if I ever buy or sell a home again."

Maureen Bender's significant other, Michael, recently witnessed Janet at work when she helped Maureen purchase her new home and he said, "It takes a very patient person to work effectively with Maureen and Janet has the patience of a saint. She was also sweet and fun to be around and always seemed to ask the right questions. She called a lot, kept everyone up to date with what was going on, good-naturedly put up with all the nonsense that is part of buying or selling a house, and best of all, when the sale was finalized, she left us a wonderful ice chest full of fruit, Champagne, and lots of other goodies. She's a very good realtor and we were fortunate to have her."

Maureen added, "Buying a house is very stressful and the more I stressed out the more kind and understanding Janet became. A couple of other deals had fallen through, but Janet just kept us focused and on track. One day she even took my stepson and I out to lunch at McDonalds and although I'm sure she had a lot more important things to do, she seemed to honestly enjoy our company and I was really impressed by that. She's a very gracious person who helped us through a very difficult time and she couldn't have done her job any better."

When Janet isn't busy selling real estate, she likes to travel, work in the garden, and make stained glass windows. She also takes time out of her busy schedule every Monday to participate in the Yolo County Meals on Wheels program, which delivers a hot, nutritious mid-day meal to West Sacramento senior citizens who are homebound.

JANET FRIESINGER

"I've met a lot of wonderful people through Meals on Wheels," said Janet. "Senior citizens can teach younger generations a lot and I've learned so much from listening to their stories and trying to do what little I can to help."

In about a month, Janet will also be participating in a three day bike ride (each day she plans to cover at least 50 miles) in support of the American Lung Society, which supports research into childhood asthma and other lung related diseases.

"We're trying to raise funds for the Lung Society by having people sponsor us on our bike ride," explained Janet, "and anyone who would like to sponsor me can give me a call at 916-556-9905. It's really a good cause and I'm looking forward to getting on my bike and doing the best I can."

In the past few years, Janet has lost her second husband to heart disease and her mother to cancer.

"It's been a pretty difficult time," admitted Janet, "but having a job I love doing has really helped. I even enjoy the time I have to spend in the car going from place to place. And whether it's showing properties, or negotiating with sellers, or writing down an offer, or even doing all the escrow work that is required, it's all fun to me and I hope any of your readers who think I might be able to help them will give me a call and let me try my very best."

Janet is licensed to sell real estate throughout California and in addition to West Sacramento and the rest of Yolo County, she does quite a bit of business in Sacramento and El Dorado counties and recently helped a couple in San Francisco purchase two homes.

Janet's Coldwell Banker office is located at 730 Alhambra Boulevard, Suite 150, and she can also be reached by calling (916) 341-7839 or faxing her at (916) 447-3611.

Her E-Mail address is: JFRIESINGER@EXCITE.COM.

If you would like to meet Janet in person, she is holding an open house at the home pictured above, 314 11th Street in West Sacramento, on Sunday from 1-4 p.m.

OPINION

Guest Commentary:

Mayor's Open Letter on Education

Editor's note: The following is taken from a written statement Mayor Cabaldon released last month as he named the members of the new "Mayor's Blue Ribbon Commission on School Excellence."

By Christopher L. Cabaldon, Mayor
City of West Sacramento

Nothing is more important to the future of a community than its schools. West Sacramento is a city that has remade itself into a regional center of waterfront revitalization, economic strength, and high-quality, balanced development, and our pragmatic and progressive spirit has earned us the best in public services. But sustaining our success and broadening the scope of our prosperity depends on excellent schools where every child learns.

The schools of the Washington Unified School District (WUSD) serve the families of West Sacramento, and provide opportunities for many students to achieve. High school graduation rates are at the statewide average, and more than half of the graduates enroll in college. On the state's Academic Performance Index, or API, several WUSD schools are performing as well as most other California schools, and the 2000 test results show some encouraging incremental progress. Several of the schools have won state and national recognition and awards. In a district with challenges typical of urban school districts elsewhere, West Sacramento's schools can count some impressive results. Many students succeed — especially those who attend the Bryte, Southport, or Westmore Oaks elementary schools and those whose families are deeply involved in learning and school activities.

But our community deserves excellent schools where all students learn and succeed. API rankings and standardized test scores offer a clear warning sign: too many children are losing opportunity and losing hope. In every subject at the middle school, two-thirds of the students are below the national average — these students are at risk of serious failure when the state implements the new high school exit exam as a condition of graduation. At some elementary schools, only one in five students is at the national average in some subjects. At the most critical development period in their lives, children at these schools cannot read, write, spell, or calculate at the appropriate level. Two elementary schools rank in the lowest 10% of all California schools, whether or not student demographics are taken into account.

Perhaps the most distressing warning sign is that many parents feel that they must enroll their children in private schools — not as a matter of choice or religious preference, but instead because of a lack of confidence in their local public school.

Could it be that some of the district's schools simply face more difficult challenges due to the economic, cultural, and language characteristics of the students who arrive at the classroom door? Southport Elementary School, for example, performs above the statewide average on the API and above the national average on the STAR assessment in nearly every subject and grade level, but relatively few of its students face economic hardship or English as a second language and nearly every one comes from a family where at least one parent has earned a high school diploma. Westfield Elementary School, on the other hand, has very low API and STAR scores, but its most of its students are from lower income families and a majority are learning English as a second language.

Poverty, limited English proficiency, and other student characteristics are important factors, but the results at Bryte Elementary School demonstrate that they do not have to predetermine the destiny of the pupils. Students at Bryte face the same economic and language challenges as their counterparts at Westfield, yet they perform at the state average on the API and much better than Westfield students on the STAR assessments. Clearly, the school and its teachers can make a difference.

The time has come for our community's civic leadership to take responsibility with the school district for the success of our children.

Each school and its teachers must make a difference. No matter the economic or language challenges, every child in West Sacramento deserves to learn and to succeed.

With uneven opportunities at the elementary schools and severe challenges at Golden State Middle School, we cannot be complacent about the success of River City High School. Graduation rates approach the statewide average and are better than other urban districts in the region, but one-third still drop out (compared to less than one-quarter of the students in the Elk Grove District). River City students perform well on most standardized tests, but too few are achieving reading scores at the national norm. And statewide, about 7.6% of high school graduates enroll at the University of California. Only 2.5% of River City High School graduates — or fewer than 8 students each year — progress to UC. While overall college-going rates are excellent, especially at community colleges, River City students should have the opportunity to avail themselves of the full range of educational opportunities, including study at the nation's premier research university.

We must have higher expectations of our children, and they deserve to have higher expectations of us. Over the last year, we have seen two of the most significant commitments to the future of education in our history. First, the Los Rios Community College District invested heavily in a new West Sacramento Center for Sacramento City College, opening new opportunities for education and training, a path to postsecondary degrees for local high school graduates, and a second chance for others. Then in March of this year, the people of West Sacramento approved an $18 million bond, to be matched with state funds, for modernization, renovation, repair, and expansion of WUSD school facilities.

These investments in our educational system are absolutely critical to achieving excellent schools where every student learns. But they are not enough.

Based on a commitment to the quality of life for West Sacramento residents, the City of West Sacramento and the Washington Unified School District have developed a close partnership. The two jurisdictions have assumed joint responsibility for parks, recreation, child care, and other seamless programs and services. Both have collaborated on school facilities planning and financing, school safety, cable broadcasting of courses, development of the Sacramento City College Center on Harbor Blvd., and truancy and youth crime prevention. The City Council has been a significant force in support of the school district's effort. But now we must do more.

The time has come for our community's civic leadership to take responsibility with the school district for the success of our children. To that end, I have asked a group of accomplished individuals to accept the task of charting a path. A group with deep talent in organizational effectiveness, educational reform, business, government, and the unique opportunities and characteristics of West Sacramento, they will work on an intensive basis over the next three months to assess how we can do better.

In asking this group to devote their expertise and creativity to this challenge, I am joining a national movement. Mayors throughout the nation, in big cities and small towns, are reengaging their communities in the success of local public schools — and it is making a difference. Close to home, for example, Sacramento has seen significant and sustained results, and is now widely heralded as a model of school reform.

We know what works: talented and enthusiastic teachers who have the resources to help students learn; textbooks and access to technology for all students; active involvement by parents and by the broader community; and an appropriate balance of high expectations, decentralized decisionmaking, and rigorous accountability. A recent study by the Education Commission of the States reports that:

An increasing amount of research over the last 20 years has shown that schools that are most successful in educating their students contain certain characteristics, including:

1. A clear focus on academic learning in a climate of high expectations;
2. A safe and orderly school environment;
3. High standards for teachers, coupled with ambitious and ongoing professional development;
4. Collegial decisionmaking and a supportive professional environment organized around a common mission;
5. A partnership with parents and others in the community in support of children's high achievement; and
6. Accountability for student performance.

Against the odds, West Sacramento astonished the region by our innovation and dedication in opening Raley Field and the Riverwalk. Surely we can do no less for the education of our community's children.

Public notices

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The West Sacramento City Council will conduct a public hearing on August 9, 2000 at 7:00 PM or as soon thereafter as possible on the following. The hearing will be held at city hall, 1350 Halyard Dr., West Sacramento. Interested persons are invited to attend. In compliance with the ADA, if you need assistance to participate in this meeting, you should contact the City Clerk at 373-5800. Notification 72 hours prior to the meeting will enable the City to make reasonable arrangements to assure accessibility to this meeting. City Hall is handicapped accessible.

1. The City's Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG). The public hearing will encompass a review of closing grants, a review of open grants, revisions to the Reuse Plan for CDBG Revolving Loan Funds, budgets for the Revolving Loan Funds, and take citizen comments on the proposed use of grant funds for the Fiscal Year 2000-2001.

The City has two grants to be closed: #97-STBG-1144, used in the development of West Capitol Courtyard II; and #97-STBG-1189, a planning and technical assistance grant for a homebuyer feasibility study and the Arlington Oaks sewer installation study. Annual performance reports for open grants include: #99-STBG-1325, a $300,000 rehabilitation grant for Arlington Oaks neighborhood; and #98-EDBG-617, a $ 500,000 economic development grant for the capitalization of the business loan fund.

The City operates the CDBG Program with grants from the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program funded through the State of California Department of Housing and Community Development. The City is eligible for a maximum award of up to $800,000 per year or $1.2 million in any two consecutive years from the General and Economic Development Set-Asides combined. No one grant contract may exceed $500,000 in any year. Grants up to $35,000 per year from the General Planning and Technical Assistance allocation and $35,000 per year for Economic Development Planning and Technical Assistance allocation may be awarded and do not count toward the $800,000 cap.

The four major activity categories are Housing-New Construction, Housing-Rehabilitation, Community Facilities/Public Services, and Public Works. Projects funded with CDBG funds must carry out a least one of three national objectives: benefit to Targeted Income Group (TIG) persons, elimination of slums and blight, and meeting urgent community development needs. Neither the city nor the State of California discriminates on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or disability.

If you are unable to attend the public hearing, you may direct written comments to the City of West Sacramento prior to the date of the hearing, August 9, 2000, at the City of West Sacramento, Redevelopment Agency, 1350 Halyard Drive, West Sacramento, CA 95691. Information may be obtained at the above address between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on weekdays, or you may telephone (916) 373-5843 and ask for Tina Gontarski.

Local kids meet 'Dinger'

On July 18, the Sacramento River Cats new mascot, Dinger the Cat, visited the children of Rosie's latchkey class at the Washington Children Center. Dinger dropped by to thank the children for making 'Welcome to West Sacramento River Cats' Opening Day posters, which will be mounted in the locker rooms of the players.

The following children made the visit possible: Anna Marie Hinjosa, Alex Pulido, Tommy and Timmy Hawkins, Teresa Ramirez, Sara Jorrin, Keryasten Santos, Diana Correa and Angel Azevedo.

Everyone was real excited to have Dinger as a guest. He was also kind enough to take photos with the rest of the Center's preschool to school-age children. The visit was courtesy of the Sacramento River Cats marketing department.

The Washington Children Center is open year around from 7:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

This week in local government

The Sacramento-Yolo Port District Commission has canceled its meeting of August 14.

Mayor Cabaldon's "Blue Ribbon Commission on School Excellence" plans a second meeting for this Thursday, Aug. 3, at 6 p.m. in the community room of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Chairman Wes Beers reports that the commission is still planning its approach to its goals, and Thursday's meeting will include more planning decisions. Spectators are welcome, he said, although the commission "is not going to have a formal mechanism to receive testimony."

The commission, formed privately by Mayor Christopher Cabaldon, is not an official city commission.

The West Sacramento City Council will meet in open session beginning at 7 p.m. tonight at 1350 Halyard Dr.

Agenda items will include acceptance of public improvements within Southport Industrial Park and Bridgeway Island, consideration of a Yolo County Regional Multi-Disciplinary Interview Center (for investigating child molestation), approval of a list of laboratories to perform analytical services, and a review of the 2000-2001 preliminary budget.

Meanwhile, no one has yet filed for election to the West Sacramento City Council.

Longtime incumbent Greg Potnick is not expected to run for another term. City clerk Helen Kanowsky reports that incumbents Bill Kristoff and Mark Montemayor have picked up candidacy papers. Also picking up papers are potential challengers Jeff Henry and Oscar Villegas (both current members of the city planning commission) and former council member Roland Hensley.

Hensley, a retired businessman, resigned a council post in 1996 for health reasons. He could not be reached for comment, but a family member said he was reconsidering his new candidacy.

Deadline for filing for either the school board race or city council race on November's ballot is Aug. 11. But if an incumbent fails to file for re-election in either race, then the deadline for that race will be extended to Aug. 16.
